-Special Exhibition

< -Jan. 9 > Byodo-in Hoo-do ~ Its Beauty and Religion

Byodo-in was built in 1052 in Uji, Kyoto by Fujiwara Yorimichi, one of the sons of Regent Fujiwara Michinaga, a statesman who wielded great influence and power. Plagues, earthquakes, wars and other disasters led people to believe in Buddhist predictions of an impending apocalypse. As a result, aristocracy and monks put their faith in the existence of a "Buddhist Pure Land". Yorimichi had the temple built with many halls and representations of the Buddha to represent this land of the afterworld. The show introduces the temple's history, Japanese culture peculiar to the Heian period and explores people's beliefs in Pure Land Buddhism.

< -Jan. 30 > Paintings by Komoda Mitsuko and Morisuke

“100th Anniversary Exhibition Komoda Mitsuko “Morisuke and Nostalgia”.

Komoda Mitsuko (1921-2007) was born in Tokyo. She studied painting from an early age, and when she was 22, she was selected to participate in the 13th Independent Art Exhibition. However, she married Komoda Morisuke, a painter from Ehime prefecture endorsed by Inokuma Genichiro. Mitsuko gave up painting at the insistence of husband Morisuke. Mitsuko deferred to her husband's career for about 16 years, but began painting again after her husband died. Her early works were reminiscent of Morisuke's painting. Afterwards, Mitsuko turned her attention to the subjects of daily life and family, the casual scenery of every day, festivals and circuses, but with a unique perspective. Her nostalgic art captures half-remembered emotions such as loneliness and a vague unease, that leads viewers into her own mysterious world.
