Japan Association of Language Teachers (JALT) June meeting

JALT holds meetings in English on a wide range of topics related to language teaching.

Online resources and strategies for language learning

Louise Ohashi, Gakushuin University

Digital technology and learning management support can play central roles in language development. During the tech-drenched pandemic, educators need to consider how to effectively integrate digital resources without causing tech-overload. This workshop is recommended for teachers who want to a) learn about online resources and activities that can build language skills inside and outside of class and b) integrate them in ways that give learners opportunities for development without becoming overwhelming. The main focus is on English, but the workshop includes some multilingual tools and examines how machine translation (tools like DeepL and add-ons for YouTube, Netflix) can be used for a wide range of languages.

Date/Time: June 26 (Sun.) 14:00-16:00
