How's your bedside manner? An added dimension in nursing English

Simon Capper, Japanese Red Cross Hiroshima College of Nursing

As a materials developer I am always looking to add value to my courses and provide out of class activities that enable learners to prepare and review target language productively, flexibly and enjoyably. While developing a nursing English series I discovered ZenGengo. Using this Online Learning Support system has proved transformative, both in how I create materials and how I manage my classes.

This workshop uses the Bedside Manner nursing English series to demonstrate the wide range of online activities that can be created using ZenGengo, and shows the ease with which these activities can be applied to effortlessly and objectively evaluate learners, while putting the outcomes firmly in their own hands.

Yui YouTube Channel

Yui is an organization dedicated to providing information to the foreign community in Ehime. They have started making community service videos to provide information about living in Japan. Check out the first ones!

Yui is also collaborating with the Ehime International Community Facebook page. It was first set up years ago, but we are trying to revive it as another information source for Ehime. We realize FB is not used that much anymore, but we want to use the resources we have.

Wondering Who and How to Help ?

With the many wars and disasters that have occurred even in the past few months, it may be difficult to choose who and how to help. One idea is Doctors Without Borders. A contribution goes almost entirely to funding the activities of the medical staff and they respond to need all over the world. Check this website for more information on how you may contribute.

<https://www.doctorswithoutborders.org/get-involved/ways-to-give>

The Red Cross is also a world-wide organization. Information for making a donation to the Red Cross is here:
